

Jennifer Boothroyd is KVCOG's newest community planner – but not at all new to the region. Jen was born in Parkman and grew up in Somerset and Piscataquis Counties. She and her husband currently live in Brewer with their dog and two cats.

Jen graduated from the University of Maine at Farmington, and recently completed a Master's degree in Public Administration from the University of Maine. She has worked as a community planner at Eastern Maine Development Corporation and at Hancock County Planning Commission. She has also worked in state government, at the Maine Departments of Environmental Protection and Conservation.

Jen's responsibilities will be to provide technical assistance and professional planning services to municipalities. Her special interests include small town and rural planning, historic preservation, and downtown revitalization. Her other hobbies include reading, gardening, and birdwatching.

Please make an effort to welcome Jen to KVCOG, and challenge her with your toughest planning questions. She can be reached at 453-4258 ext. 26, or by email at jboothroyd@kvcoq.org.
